

CIVIC PRIDE.

The working of the public roads this summer and fall by private subscription and private labor manifests a higher degree of civic pride than has been observed in the county in many years, if ever before. In our opinion it marks the beginning of better things. It means better homes, better schools, a more cultured and intelligent people, for all these things lead to culture and refinement. Next to home pride, and we do not use the word pride in its objectionable sense comes community pride. A community that takes pride in its schools, in its churches, in its public roads, is a community of good citizens. They will obey and respect the law and give of their time and means to the making of better conditions for themselves and those about them.

Some people are selfish to that extent that they are not willing to do anything that will benefit others. They live for themselves, work for themselves, and are generally found opposing public enterprises. In many cases these are good citizens and when properly informed, or made to think correctly as to their relations to their fellow man and to society, they are frequently brought around to do the proper thing. The communities need educating along these lines and these public workings, and the talk, and agitation growing out of them, are very educative, and the more of it that is undertaken the more the people are inclined to join in and give it their support. As a rule, people want to do the right thing and are willing and ready to give public enterprises and public undertakings their cordial support when they see the value growing out of them.

Community pride, such as is manifested by the love of home, an interest in the schools, the churches, good roads, respect for the law, is something worth while, and should be encouraged at every point possible, for this, after all, is a fair index to the character of people residing in a locality.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

Judge Neil is showing conclusively that prohibition can prohibit even in the city of Nashville. Judge Neil presides over the criminal court of Davidson county and has undertaken to enforce the laws with reference to the sale of whiskey in the city of Nashville. A number of saloon men have been indicted, tried and convicted. The judge fixed the work house sentence and a fine against each offender. They, however, were released from the work house sentence upon their surrender of federal licenses. This action of Judge Neil caused consternation among the saloon people. The judge had about three hundred cases that would likely receive a similar sentence to those already convicted. They began to appeal for mercy and the judge has given instructions that they may have until the first of October to close up their houses and dispose of their business.

The judge seems to mean business and Nashville has prospects of being a dry city so far as the open saloon is concerned. The action of Judge Neil shows clearly what one man backed by the law can do if he will only try.

There is much conjecturing as to what prompted this action upon the part of Nashville's circuit judge. Judge Neil is an appointee of Ex-Governor Patterson and some insist that the Ex-Governor had something to do with the judge's present stand for law enforcement. Governor Patterson dislikes Mayor Howse and would like to see all the discomfort possible brought upon that prominent official, and nothing would disarm him more than to close the saloons of the capital city.

Whatever may have prompted Judge Neil's new departure, he is simply doing his duty, and all law loving people should stand behind him in his efforts to enforce laws that have long been trodden under foot of the whiskey people of Nashville.

THE COTTON FARMER.

The cotton farmer is peculiarly blessed by nature. His location is the ideal one for growing anything that other sections can and innumerable things that are his own peculiar province. The world is his market, and foreign cash flows as steadily and surely in this direction as water runs down hill. Our cotton and tobacco are absolute necessities in the remotest parts of the earth, and for these two staples alone there is sent to the producers of the south about $2,000,000,000 each year. Every avenue of trade, every phase of urban and rural life, feels the stimulus of this vast sum. The very fact that the south is the creditor of all countries and every nation brings us to the attention of those who owe us, and it is inevitable that a section capable of putting on the market annually things whose values amount up into the ten-figure class will draw to itself the attention of the investor and the man who is looking for an opening for a new enterprise. Every community is awakened to new life and higher aspirations by prosperity, and newer manufactures, a wider spread of educational and religious facilities, more land put under cultivation, and advanced methods for that already under tillage, more and better houses for the city man and the ruralist—these are just a few of the things that the south is to have—in fact, is securing—under the impetus of the bountiful harvests and other gifts of Providence.—Tennessean and American.

The Chester Observer is the name of a new 6 page, 7 column paper that reached our desk last week. It is published at Henderson and edited by J. W. Emmons and is a neat, attractive sheet, newsy and well edited. We wish the new enterprise all the success possible.

W. H. Cannon received every vote in his home, the Atwood district, except one, in the republican primary held last week. This is a high compliment to Mr. Cannon and one of which he is, doubtless, proud.

The Huntingdon voters made Joe Hester's heart proud last week by giving him nearly all the votes of this district. We think his opponent received only about 27 votes here.

Judge Neil is doing in Nashville just what the criminal judges in all our large cities could and should do. Judge Neil is going to make Nashville a dry city.

Nashville is expecting a drouth to begin about the first of October.

SUPT. MYNDERS DEAD

One of Tennessee's Greatest Educators Has Passed Away.

Wednesday of last week, Prof. S. A. Mynders, President of the West Tennessee Normal School, and one of Tennessee's greatest educators, died at Put-in-Bay, O., where he had gone with the hope of benefitting his health. He had been suffering some time from a nervous breakdown.

Prof. Mynders was for a number of years State Superintendent of Public Instruction. During his term of office he visited Huntingdon and other points in Carroll county at different times and made many friends among our people, especially among those interested in public education.

Supt. Mynders, as President of the West Tennessee Normal, drew a salary of $3,600 paid by the state and $1,000 paid by the city, making $4,600. There are a number of applicants for his position, but it has been indicated that it would very likely be offered State Superintendent J. W. Brister. In the event of Brister's accepting the position, Governor Hooper would have the appointment of his successor as State Superintendent and for this office several names have been mentioned. Among them are G. W. Dyer, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, and M. W. Robinson, Assistant State Superintendent.

Additional Locals

J. W. Blair and wife spent from Friday till Monday in the Eighth district visiting Mr. Blair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Blair, and his brother, W. H. Blair, and attending the protracted meeting at Pleasant Hill church.

Ben Dickey and wife returned Tuesday from a three months bridal trip in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, North Dakota, Montana and Colorado. After this week they will be at home at Edgewood farm a few miles south of town.

Rev. Holland, pastor of the Pleasant Hill Christian church in the Eighth district, closed a very successful revival last Sunday afternoon. The meeting continued one week and there were sixteen additions to the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shiley of Chicago, were here last week looking over the country with Jenkins & Son and are very much pleased with the country and expect to locate here in the near future.

Last Saturday evening as Mrs. Bill Thompson and her daughter were driving home from Pleasant Hill church their mule became frightened and ran away with them. The buggy turned over and they were thrown out and hurt, though not seriously.

The Parent teachers' Association has arranged for "Tag Day," show day. Beautiful young ladies will pin pretty little ribbon boutonnieres on you for a dime. The fund raised will be used to help pay for the erection of a sanitary drinking fountain at the I. T. S. Prepare to wear a "tag" on show day.

Dr. R. Linn Cave, of Nashville, will deliver a lecture at the Christian church Friday, October 3, on the subject of "Stonewall Jackson, Admission free. Everybody invited. Dr. Cave is one of the prominent orators of the state and it is needless to say that a great treat is in store for the people of Huntingdon.

Some one in Huntingdon has the old song:
I stand here idly waiting
For my fairy ship to land,
Glancing upon the sunshine
That gilds the sparkling sand.
Please send to me at McKenzie,

ROBERT YOUNG

Esteemed Citizen of Christmasville Died Last Week.

Robert Young died Wednesday night of last week at his home in Christmasville from ills incident to old age. He was about 84 years old and has been failing in health for some time.

Mr. Young was for many years a merchant at Christmasville, and for a long time a member of the Carroll county court. He was also, at one time, a member of the Carroll County Democratic Executive Committee for a number of years, taking an active part in politics. He was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and a Mason. He lived a useful life, taking a prominent part in everything that had for its object the material development and the educational and religious growth of the community. He was held in highest esteem and will be greatly missed.

Mr. Young was the father of sixteen children, ten of whom, with his wife, survive him, Felix, Wade and Foster, of Colorado, Charley and Will Young and Mrs. H. F. Bobo, of McKenzie, Luther, Frank, Dewitt and Grover, of the Christmasville community.

The funeral services were conducted at his residence Friday morning at ten o'clock by Revs. Pete Keaton and Edgar McCoy and the burial with Masonic honors followed at Pilgrim's Rest.

Mr. Burton who lives near Fulton, Ky., came in Wednesday, and is visiting his brother, Tom Burton in the Eighth district.

MRS. R. K. PINCKLEY

Died Tuesday at Home Near Hollow Rock

Mrs. R. K. Pinckley of Hollow Rock died Tuesday morning after a two months illness from paralysis of the throat. She was 67 years old.

Mrs. Pinckley was a member of the Christian church and of a prominent family in her community. Some years ago the family resided in Huntingdon, but have been living near Hollow Rock for some time. She is survived by her husband, one son, Wallace, who lives in Missouri, three daughters, Mrs. Henry Massey, of Hollow Rock, Mrs. Dode Massey, of Buena Vista, Mrs. Erda Elinor, of Nebraska, and Mrs. Johnnie Reeves, of Caruthersville, Mo.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, Elder Brown, of Paris, conducting them. The remains were interred at the McAuley cemetery.

A son of C. H. Moore, of Leach, was hauling ties Tuesday with a team of mules. He had been whipping the mules, and was unhitching one of them from the wagon when the mule kicked him in the head knocking him some distance. He was painfully, though not seriously injured.

MRS. SIM GARRETT

Death of a Splendid Woman in the Third District.

Mrs. Sim Garrett died Monday night at her home in the Third district from typhoid fever. She was a member of the Baptist church at Concord and an excellent lady. She was about fifty-five years old.

Mrs. Garrett is survived by three sons, Leonard, Clyde and Milton, and one daughter, Miss Bertie. Her husband died several months ago. Two of her sons, Clyde and Milton, are now sick with typhoid fever, one of them in a critical condition.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at Concord church by Rev. D. T. Spaulding, of Paris, a former pastor of Mrs. Garrett's. The interment followed in Concord cemetery.
